

EINSTEIN AND THE PARTY OF 12 DECEMBER 31, 2018

Channeled by Barbara With

Good morning, good afternoon, good evening, whomever, wherever, whenever. Today is Monday, December 31, 2018. We've come together to have a look back on 2018, as well as turning to have a gaze into the future of 2019.

As we all can imagine, we're gathered here with Don and Donna who are in Sedona, Cathy is in Ohio, Robin and Tracy are in Portland and I'm in Lake superior on Madeline Island. Cassandra I imagine is in Duluth, Minnesota. She's just joined us.

We're gathered here knowing what the real agenda is with the Party and why we get together. This has always been about people who really want to go into their own lives and gain control of what is theirs to be in control of—what is yours, what is mine to be in control of. It's not for everybody, but I see the remarkable affects that it has on lives.

I'm humbled as I personally look back on 2018, very humbled what all of this work that Einstein and the Party, through the many years and the actual practical application of the teachings, has resulted in (for me personally): a really remarkable operating system. I'm so humbled and awed, and most the time I don't even know what to say about the whole thing.

Today we're going to look back in a way that I think is always rooted in the present, always rooted in the operating system, always rooted in helping us understand what our bigger domain is all about. They're always true to their mission.

There will be time for questions and answers and more practical things, but I just want to start out by sharing with you an experience that I had in the past couple of weeks. I live on this little island and we have this little church. It's a United Church of Christ, St. John's, and our lovely Pastor Marina Lachecki retired this year in September. I just learned that her husband just passed away today. He was in hospice, so it wasn't unexpected, but thinking of her today and sending her all kinds of love and him too, and including him in the circle of souls.

We have a new pastor coming but they needed people to fill in. I volunteered. I like to do that kind of thing, I think I can do it OK. So I had a chance to channel Jesus in a way that was really startlingly awakening for me.

I grew up EUB: Olivet Evangelical United Brethren, whatever that was. I separated from the church and haven't read the Bible much. So when I volunteered, there were Bible verses that came with the service, spinning into the Christian service.

I was happy to read them and as I did, I saw this relationship to Jesus in this whole new way, partly because my relationship to Jesus has been through the Party. I certainly recognized his greatness, but it hasn't been is if I was looking at it through Christian eyes, through that filter of heralding his birth (for good reason [were they heralding his birth])!

I started to think about Mary. The Bible verse was all about how Mary went up into the hills to see her cousin Elizabeth. Elizabeth was at the time six months pregnant with John the Baptist, he would become John the Baptist. Mary, as soon as she walked through the door and Elizabeth saw her, her baby jumped in the womb because Mary was also pregnant with Jesus at that time. That was with the Bible verse was about.

I started to think about Mary being, as scholars say, 12 or 13 years old. So here's a 12- or 13-year-old being visited by an angel, and not just any angel, but Gabriel. Now I know how this feels. I started to relate to how, first of all, how terrified she must have been. And not just that, but Gabriel tells her, you're going to have baby. Oh, and it's going to be conceived by the Holy Spirit and your son's going to be called the son of God. You know, this is crazy—a 12-year-old! That would terrify me as a 12-year-old! She goes up to see Elizabeth and gets some sort of validation for this event.

Being wrapped up in the story and being in Jesus' milieu, shall we say—I don't go to church myself, I don't do this much. But participating again in the ceremony of my local church, I got in touch with Jesus in an entirely new way. Part of it is a confirmation of what we're doing here: that all of us are trying to become that change to do more than he did, which is what he said when he was here. He was demonstrating how you never leave compassion. It doesn't matter if he was up against the devil, or Pontius Pilot, or being crucified, or betrayed by his own people: he never stepped away from compassion. Whatever he said—and there's not a lot of record—there's a lot of record of what people thought he said, but there's no record of what he said. It was his demonstration in the scope of his life that was the power of what he did and inspiration for all of us to do that.

Seeing that as a piece of the Party, as a piece of this Einsteinian plan to pass on this worldview that supports Christianity, it supports Buddhism, it supports everything—it's just supportive of everything. But to see that piece was really, really profound for me this year.

So as I looked back on my own 2018 and losing my mother, and the whole transformation that that depth has brought, it's like no other year for me. I have to think that I'm not really different than anybody else. We've all been through such great transformational events in our lives and we've come to this place now of turning and facing into a new era. We're the leaders of our own lives. Having the Party to be able guide us into that vision, and how to practically implement that vision, is such a great honor. I'm humbled again by all of this and my relationship to it.

I wanted to share just a little bit today about my communication with my mother and my father since my mother died. I haven't really been able to talk about it, and nor should I have to. I feel like I want to share a little bit of it.

It's so amazing to me. It's different than I anticipated. It was much more traumatic than I imagined it would be. Communicating with her through it, and watching her and my father, who is here, too, very much present, work through what happens after you die and you get back together with those family members in the non-physical who you just shared a life with, to regroup and re-communicate and see, analyze, just what we all do with this information about our lives. I watched my parents grow together. I've watched their growth in Afterlife be able to affect me, as if it were real. And you know the funny thing about that ... but to have a new relationship with these parents who took responsibility in Afterlife and want to progress, want to continue in these deep love of growth. And that's what we're doing here.

For me in 2018, that's been the most profound: looking back on it and getting to the present for me. I'm very excited about seeing what 2019 brings, but I think the gazing ahead is going to be a lot about fortifying our own relationship to this Jesus part of us, for lack of a better word, as we move forward. But I'm going to let the Party talk about that.

We command that only the most divine light shine down upon us at this time and the greatest good be present here.

I want to start out, take some deep breaths, all of us connect just relax. Put aside these thoughts of the world and turn inward. Turn inward to this energy we are always gathering to examine and be a conscious part of.

[BREATHE]

With every breath that you take in, imagine if you would right in front of you there is a cloud of smoke. Don't be afraid to draw this smoky substance into your breath and let it fill up your body and then as you exhale, channel all of that right straight through the heart. See the heart center as being so powerful that it is transforming all of that dark, smoky, murky separated thinking into an expression of the greatest good, of the great love, of the highest love that there.

Not only do you make decisions for the good of the whole, you make decisions for your own greatest good. You can't have one without the other. That kind of energy plays off itself. You know how that is when you are in a very creative mode and you meet up with someone else who is in a creative mode, it's almost brainstorming that goes on. It's an exercising of creative energy that stimulates manifestation. It opens up possibilities.

Rest assured that all possibilities cannot take place. There's going to be a set of probabilities based on some mathematical proportions, and then some other predicting factors of maybe habits in the past (how many times did you say you would do this and how many times did you actually do it), that kind of calculating of patterns and such, like the guts of a computer calculating things.

But this movement forward from here has you at the controls of what's happening on this inside, internal world as the most important place for you to be, whether it's looking at the past or gazing into the future. Your inner decision-making process that's in place: if you have a decision-making process in place that's constantly in the collective way, considering what's best for the good of the whole, it starts with your own well being. Not out of selfish, but it's the way the pattern plays: it's coming out of you and into the world. If your well being is solid, you realize that you are not here necessary to manifest a particular outcome, but you're here to become fluid with what is being thrown at you.

You're here to be so aware of that decision-making process in yourself on such a microscopic level and so committed to doing what's best for the good of the whole, by doing so, the passion is there. The passion to be the change in this collective world is there.

As you become the change and you live that passion, there is a kind of a relaxation in your relationship to yourself. You don't have to work so hard at that.

One of the things that we saw happening in 2018 for all of you is that you started to get clearer on a part of the operating system that makes a big difference in outcomes. The difference is, when is it time to work harder? Because there are times in a process, in a pattern, in a manifestation, {when you say}, "Oh yeah, I have to work a little bit harder." You're getting your PhD so you know you have to go through a time where you have to work a little bit harder.

Or, when is it time to employ a different process? And knowing the difference in present moment is a big clue to making your life easier, healthier, more in the flow. Because you know full well that if you are in a time where you should be doing something different, but you think you should work harder at what you are doing, then you're going to work five times as hard and still not get anywhere. Because what the moment is calling for is to do a different process, not do the same process more intensely or more focused.

In the same vein, if it's time to work harder at something, going to do a different process might just be an escape from doing that harder work that's needed at that time.

Understanding this difference has been a good part 2018's lessons, if you get down to it. Think about that and how it relates to relationships, your job, or your work or making money. One of the challenges in this is the value of making money. There are times where it's more valuable for you rest. If you have to choose in a moment, how are your values laid out? Your body has one value in that moment. It would want to rest if intuition was saying it. But your intellect might be creating another story about what's more valuable. "That's all well and good, but I need to pay the rent so I have to not rest as I go to work."

These conflicts that go on in your own self go on all day long. We guarantee that if you could tune in 24/7—and you know the funny thing about that—you would hear so many of your own conflicts and recognize them as such. This idea of knowing if it's time to change process or is it time to work harder, take that into 2019. Then pair it with the passion for the greatest good. It will elevate everything to a new level of functionality.

We feel that the product of the synchronicity that we are trying to inspire you to create is measurable and it becomes living a life that way, to where you don't have to live by anything other than synchronicity and intuition. You're getting so detached from those outcomes, you're rearranging your values of yourself. What part of yourself values money more than your health? Those are hard looks to take at self, but the best, the most productive, the most regenerative because now you're getting into those areas that are hard to access, which come from traumas, past traumas.

That comes from being people who feel deeply. All of you who are listening to this feel deeply and aren't afraid to say it and be it. These changes that you're going through are helping on a DNA level of the collective human consciousness. We want to encourage you to keep going with that.

When we look at the global 2018, we see the same chaos that you do. We see a lot more diversity though, in what's going on on the planet because we can see the whole planet; you can only see pieces that you hear on social media, or media, or read in the newspaper or somehow find out about, which is easy to do in the world today.

But that's still not everything, but any stretch of the imagination. There's so much going in the world that no one ever hears about and never gets framed in a political way or broadcast, it just goes on. So we see more areas of growth and change towards what you're working for than you do, probably.

Everything is always chaotic when you're going through a complete transformation. You're tearing everything down to its root and starting over with a more accurate and authentic creation. One that's based upon hopefully what were espousing, and what you say you want to do, which is to build a culture and a world that reflects the Eden that it's meant to be: Earth as Mother, as provider.

But human consciousness has this genetic piece of free will that makes you different than, say, the trees. Think about the trees, them as one sentient being, connected all across the world. There is a response system. For example, if there's an infestation of bugs, the trees will respond by providing and creating their own bug repellent. But there isn't thinking through of things and deciding on the destruction of other humans or other resources, for what reason? Profit of money. Humans share this ability, but not with the trees. It doesn't mean the trees don't sense and understand and pick up and communicate, but it's the difference of what Human Intention has brought to this grand experiment of evolution.

You have come here to be that. You have to accept your potential for all sides, which is why the Party is represented also by the dark side. The dark of humanity, the potential that every human has within them to do good or to do evil (to make decisions for the benefit of the few at the expense of the many).

You take control of that within yourself. And that's all that you can do. And that was what Jesus wanted to tell you. If you think about his life in the short term—the 33 years that he walked as Jesus of Nazareth who became the Son of God that was remembered for centuries—if you think what he did, how many people he reached, certainly not many, compared to how many people you can reach in the world today in person.

Really, his teachings were only recorded for three or four years of that life. When he said, "You can do what I did and more," he was really being very literal. Not that you can be the king of the universe [like him], unless it's the king of your own universe. But you can do this in your life. Just like he did. More than he did. You're in a time where you understand so much more of all this. He really wanted you to know that power and the responsibility that you have for that power.

Going into 2019, that's really the theme, knowing that power within yourself, owning it, working it, going even deeper into the energy that is you and taking responsibility with passion and wanting to work for the good of all. It's exciting to realize that it doesn't matter what happens, what you come up against. It doesn't matter if you come up against the devil, or Pontius Pilate, or that you're crucified or that your friends turn on you. It doesn't matter. That's not the point.

As you embrace this lesson in a whole new way in your lives, you're going to find surrender: surrender to life and death, surrender to the greater good and the longer view. A love of self just exactly as you are right now, as a human with whatever kinds of challenges in your life, or however many lives that you're aware of surging through your body, or if you think you're winning or losing, living or dying, rising or falling. The very act of creating human life is so magnificent. It is the God itself. There should be speechlessness at your small humble part in it.

And yet, like standing up for your cause, for yourself, for your right, you're going to take your own mission on as seriously as Jesus took his mission. As seriously as Mary took her mission. Even though you're not going to have that same kind of fate, it doesn't matter.

When you get into the beginning of 2019, we see a lot of surges of creativity for all of you on so many levels. If you want to accelerate that, then take a very clear look at the people that you have in your life. Whether it's the actual family or your friends, or the people you work with, everyone. Take a look at everyone you have in your life. Try to find those places where you're trying harder and harder but nothing is going on. Nothing is changing. Maybe it's time to do something else.

Look at them also in terms of is there something you could do just a little bit? Could you try just a little harder with this person or that person? Could you try just one more time in just a different way?

Think in terms of that when you're approaching situations that you have questions about, circumstances of your life and what you need to do. We're trying to help you build a system inside yourself that is so self-contained and operating so exacting to take care of you, that you never have any doubt again about your life because that operating system is in place.

Our view of 2019 is that this kind of explodes. What you're going to have challenges in (and maybe you already do) is reconciling what you see going on around you in the world—in the social world, in the news world, in the world and what's really going on, things that you experience that are part of this chaos, this craziness.

How to balance that with this eternal part of self that knows it's here for a temporary visit as Don and Donna, Cassandra, and everyone else, just having a temporary experience together. Because of this openness that you're going to have and you're going to see in the world, then you get to influence the manifestation.

As you do a conflict in the family, as you approach it differently. Maybe you really feel like you don't want to, but maybe it is time to try just one more time. Or else you really get to the point where you say, "I can't do this anymore. I have to go do this in order to take care of myself—do something different." Either one of those.

This frees up your energy, if you can be OK with that alone time, that absence of whatever that thing was that was eating up your energy in a way that wasn't regenerative. It frees that up.

This year of 2019 has an opportunity for everyone to take a break from all the crazy insanity that you feel is sometimes being rained upon you. More and more people are going to find a way—not ignore it, not pretend it's not happening—but to work hard to make sure that you're doing what's good for the whole. You'll know. Sometimes you're called to go stand up with people. Sometimes you're called to help a family friend. Sometimes you're called to fill in, sometimes to a spontaneous need, to help somebody with their groceries. There are all kinds of ways that you get called to be of service to the world in small practical ways. When you make that a priority in your life, you're basically doing what's good for the whole, being in service to people, to the whole, in whatever way that is.

Even if it is just in your prayers, in your mantras, in the way that you channel your compassion and the responsibility that you take for yourself, that you are going to have that. Even if that's all it is and you never go out and feed the poor or what have you, that's the core of who you should be. You'll find great connection and purpose if you then go above and beyond, and go out and find where the world needs you. Go find it, don't just sit there and let it come to you. Go find it, whatever it is. Think creatively, outside the box.

This goes out to those of you who might be looking for work. There an attitude of being outside the box. There is a willingness to go into that brainstorming. There is a willingness to live in that chaos in the beginning, when you don't know. You have no idea yet. But if you can adopt that attitude of discovery, knowing that your [operating] system is set. You're going in there and you are going to find more than enough ways to help be the change, to help the evolution of human consciousness.

We are here with you every step of the way. More and more, the Party grows. Again, next year don't be surprised if you are developing your own relationships directly to family members, people who have passed on, us the Party, that these openings that you're making inside yourselves, applying this love, letting love move through you turns you into these very intuitive selves. Once you put intuition into imagination, then you get the hand of God working through your human mind in a beautiful way.

For those of you who are naturally overly intellectual—Honor and Articulations who are very, very intellect-oriented—2019 is going to be a bigger flop over the compassion, to the emotion. And vice versa: those of you who have been so traditionally emotionally oriented—where sometimes you don't know what to do because you can see all sides of things—you're going to find yourself much more rooted into a reasoning, intellectual viewpoint, to begin to challenge yourself to get out of that trap.

Like when you're very caring for someone, they could have done a horrible thing to you and hurt you, but in that moment you can still feel this compassion for them because you can see where their pain came from. That's all well and good, but in wanting to do what's good for everyone, there is something more that you can do [for yourself], not letting yourself be hurt in those ways. Not being in that space where someone may do that do you, without having to exert hate, or punishment, or any kind of interaction in that way.

These changes, this flip-flopping and the ability that Intellect is going to give those people of Compassion to be able to make decisions for the good of the whole and take and act on them and feel the confidence of tough love. Sometimes it's tough love, it just is. But tough love feels good in the longer run, and that's also going to be what you see in yourself, the changes that have come through this long run of you working to be this greater person.

In between last year and next year, we want right now for everyone to look at your life and acknowledge the enormous amount of growth and life that you've lived. Acknowledge your talents and your gifts. Acknowledge your abilities. Acknowledge your power just in being human. As you acknowledge, it brings it to life—you come to life in this way.

In 2019, again, you will be dealing with people in your lives leaving the planet. The more that you can use 2019 to be another step into freeing yourself from the old view of what humanity is—that the physical world is the primary world and the non-physical world maybe doesn't even exist. This changes to that the non-physical world is 90% of the entire operating system and the physical is really only 10%. Being able to obtain this knowledge in this life, like you're doing, putting it into practice in these practical ways and then reaching your death point (which you all will) is another step in the transformation, an exciting opportunity that's come, not the end. Not a loss, but part of the process that you've been through, trust us, 100 times before.

With that awareness this is a big step, a big time. We've talked about in Paris and we'll talk about it again next year, that we're very excited about it. It's breathtaking to see it. You don't get to see it in this way yet. You still have the cares and the worries of 2019 and what's happening on the surface of the planet in your universe. All the more reason for you all to commit to making your own universe as highly evolved as you can. Be like Jesus. Don't let anything throw you off your compassion. And certainly not your own inner trauma. In fact, let that inspire you to take the time to let it guide you into what that loving change needs to be in order to flow and release the trauma and replace it with a new passion that's tied to working for the good of all.

Then every particle of your being is vibrating with this unique DNA that's driving you from that deep level through your intuition, to be a regenerative, self-healing, love-reacting human being. Like the waters and the trees that connect all over the world, of course you as humans connect all over the world. And you're everything. You're part tree and your part water. You're part human and you're part spirit. You're part earth and you're part sky. You are the center of your universe. And when you die, your universe will die with you—that perception. But of course the mathematical equations that were formulated through those actions will live on—thoughts, feelings, senses, memories, the holographic memory of what your body was like, all stored up.

Not in 2019, but sometime in the near future, there'll be more understanding of what that kind of time travel is. In the meantime, you're the scientists in that field of how far your power will take to you, to what kind of greatest good can you help facilitate, greater than Jesus even did. It's an exciting time to be a live and to be part of this movement.

By the time you get to the end of 2019, what we see is a much stronger base solidification of your place in your universe, understanding that whatever is coming, you're here to be here. You're here to adapt and adopt and put that energy forward, to create the greatest good, wherever you go, which will be needed. What a great thing to be needed.

As you love, so you will be loved. There is a time of great inner abundance that is blooming right now. We're excited for each and every one of you.

We are going to then close the channel by saying a few things.

Being who you are, here with us today willing to take this exploratory journey, it opens up a part of you deeper than most. Take that into consideration in building your relationship to yourself. Build it into your life considerations. Things as simple as, if your intuition is really telling you not to go out, then don't go out. Rest. As simple as that.

You don't know the needed impact of that rest upon the many layers. You get so caught up in this life, that you're not aware of the many layers and how they relate to everything else. Imagine trying to follow the roots of the trees, how they all interconnect. It's hard for your human mind. It wants to know those things.

Take the time to embrace that in yourself. The truth is, it's every human. You're just lucky enough to be able to have these esoteric conversations that get you thinking in completely new directions sometimes that can make all the difference in how you manifest.

Watch and see in 2019 as more and more of what you believe and what you have been studying becomes validated and confirmed in the culture around you. All the more conversations you're going to hear about the non-physical, about the relationship between thoughts, feelings, senses, Intellect, Intuition and Emotion. You're going to hear from some really surprising sources. Look for information in odd places. Don't just take what social media runs by you, or your newspaper puts on the headline. Search and see if you can find, for example, new research on regeneration and growing back organs and limbs. It may not be that your commercial media is going to tell you that, but there might be ways to follow other lines of information about it.

Look for those stories, those things that are happening, especially in your community that you live in, with the people. Get more connected face to face with people. You don't have to spend great deals of time if you don't want to, but get connected and reach out in a particular way. It's going to be necessary in the years ahead to be with community in that way. How each of you build that will be up to you.

Mostly watch and see your own changes. Acknowledge them. Celebrate them. Then you will only need to watch and be amazed.

Namaste
